

The School of African and Gender Studies, Anthropology and Linguistics (AXL), the African Gender Institute (AGI) and the Department of Psychology are delighted to host a talk by:

Professor Jacqueline Rose, Queen Mary, University of London

“Suffering and injustice enough for everyone”- blindness and insight, politics and writing

Professor Jacqueline Rose, based at Queen Mary, University of London, is an internationally renowned scholar whose work focuses on modern subjectivity at the interface of psychoanalysis, critical literary theory, feminism, and political vision. In the past decade, she has been particularly active in the formation of intellectual debate on the questions raised by the conflict in the Middle East. Her books include The Haunting of Sylvia Plath (Virago, 1991), Albertine, a novel (Chatto and Windus, 2001), On Not Being Able to Sleep: Essays on Psychoanalysis in the Modern World (Chatto and Windus, and Princeton University Press, 2003), The Question of Zion: The Christian Gauss Lectures in the Humanities (Princeton University Press, 2004), Sexuality in the Field of Vision: Radical Thinkers (Verso, 2006), Proust among the Nations: from Dreyfus to the Middle East (Chicago University Press, 2012).

THURSDAY 21 FEBRUARY 2013

5.00 pm - 6.30 pm (with light refreshments)

University of Cape Town: Middle Campus
Kramer Building (Faculty of Law)
Lecture Theatre Three

Please contact Hilda Ferguson for more information - hilda.ferguson@uct.ac.za / 021 6502970

SCHOOL OF AFRICAN AND GENDER STUDIES,
ANTHROPOLOGY AND LINGUISTICS

UNIVERSITY OF CAPE TOWN
DEPARTMENT OF PSYCHOLOGY